

I've lived quite a few years now and during the past five years, I have become more and more frightened about what has happened to radio and t.v. stations. It reminds me of dreadful movies where inch by inch people's access to unbiased information disappears and finally they are just a bunch of brainwashed, mindless blobs under total control of some Crazy Big Daddy.

I feel like Sinclair Broadcasting is our own Crazy Big Daddy. If you allow them to run an anti-Kerry documentary, you need to make them run a pro-Kerry doc as well.

With what is happening in media consolidation today, what makes us ANY different from--say--Saudi Arabia or Iraq???

Please stand up and do the honorable thing.
